

Colton Mulligan is the CEO and Principal Strategist at FoxFuel Creative, a creative agency that produces effective outcomes for brands through design, content, and technology. In his role, he drives strategy for developing and marketing brands and deploys new technologies to design innovative marketing campaigns and platforms. He has been a member of EO (Entrepreneurs' Organization) for about six years. Before FoxFuel Creative, Colton was the Account Supervisor and Director of Strategy at MMA Creative and the Digital Account Manager at South Central Media.

Eric Jackson is the Founder and CEO of Element 47, a web design and marketing agency that helps businesses reach their marketing goals and connect to their next customer. Eric has been a member of EO for about 15 years. Before Element 47, he was the Founder and Managing Partner at Keystone Business Solutions and the President of the EO Nashville Chapter.

Here's a glimpse of what you'll learn:

• Colton Mulligan talks about his training as an EO (Entrepreneurs' Organization) forum sherpa
• The value of utilizing a coach for holding EO forum deep dives
• Colton describes the critical aspects of coaching and how to facilitate the process
• Coaching presenters to identify rather than solve problems during deep dives
• What is the difference between open and live coaching?
• Robert Hartline, Eric Jackson, and Colton share thought-provoking deep dive questions
• How to foster new forum relationships
• The elements of an unsuccessful experience and selecting an ideal coach
• Advice for coaching an EO forum deep dive

In this episode…

EO (Entrepreneurs' Organization) forum deep dives allow entrepreneurs to identify and analyze their most pressing concerns. Yet, many find these conversations intimidating and struggle to voice their problems. So, how can you maximize the value of deep dives?

EO forum coaches consult with presenters before each presentation to identify the pain point of the deep dive topic. These experts can also help facilitate the presentation by deconstructing each subject to its core component for the presenter and audience members' benefit. According to Colton Mulligan, the goal is not to solve your problem but rather to help you reflect on your situation and weigh the possible options by asking precise, open-ended questions.

Tune in to this episode as Robert Hartline sits down with Colton Mulligan of FoxFuel Creative and Eric Jackson of Element 47 to discuss coaching an EO forum deep dive. Together, they describe the critical aspects of coaching and how to facilitate the process, the difference between open and live coaching, and how to foster new forum relationships.

Resources mentioned in this episode:

• Robert Hartline on LinkedIn - https://www.linkedin.com/in/bobbyhartline/
• CallProof - https://callproof.com/
• EOS (Entrepreneurial Operating System) Worldwide - https://www.eosworldwide.com/
• EO (Entrepreneurs' Organization) Nashville Chapter - https://eonashville.com/
• Colton Mulligan on LinkedIn - https://www.linkedin.com/in/coltonmulligan/
• FoxFuel Creative - https://foxfuelcreative.com/
• Eric Jackson on LinkedIn - https://www.linkedin.com/in/ericpauljackson/
• Element 47 - https://element47.co/

Sponsor for this episode...

This episode is brought to you by EO Nashville.

The Entrepreneurs' Organization (EO) is a high-quality support network of nearly 15,000 like-minded leaders from over 60 countries.

EO helps transform entrepreneurs' lives through life-enhancing connections, shared experiences, and collaborative learning.

EO Nashville is the largest EO chapter in the US, third in the world, and has the most female members of any US chapter.

To learn more about how EO Nashville can benefit you, visit https://eonashville.com/.

Transcript

0:02 ·

$$Applause$$

welcome to the decision from Nashville EO where you will hear the rest of the story after tough decisions were made by entrepreneurs who faced adversity and live to tell about it

$$Music$$

0:23 · welcome to the decision it's that moment in time in your business or your life where you need some help on the next steps in this podcast we help entrepreneur organization members with how to go about doing a proper Deep dive

0:41 · in form to get the most value and if you watch episode one we covered correct deep dive presentation Styles and strategies on how to give a proper Deep dive so you can get something out of your form experience when you're dealing with that tough decision in this episode we're going to talk about coaching the Deep dive the Deep dive coaching process is something that

1:12 · um many people get a ton of value out of during that process but it's always good to really learn how to properly be coached and what it looks like to be a coach and today we have Colton Mulligan here joining us once again with Eric Jackson 15-year EO member I'm Robert Hartline eight years in EO and Colton

1:37 · you come to us with a different level of experience because you've got some formal training buddy right talk about your uh validate why you're here today I love that you know my love language is words of affirmation and you guys didn't know that that's what I'm here for in this podcast I just want validation we all want validation buddy so that's why we're in EO um so yeah so I've been trained uh

2:00 · through Ellie bird uh what I like to call the mother of EO as a forum Sherpa and so over the last four years years I've worked with hundreds of EO YPO and Harvard Business School Forum members on facilitating Retreats getting to the five percent Vision Values planning Etc and I just got into the EO official

2:23 · certified trainer program I'm not official yet I got to go through boot camp in February and sometimes they cut people from that so there's eight of them I don't feel like you're getting cut I mean how many pull-ups can you do oh uh these days maybe a hundred I don't you know okay if you can do a hundred I'd like to see it if I had one right now I'd be calling you out it's been a while since I've done CrossFit but yeah sure they're all Kipping so basically what you're saying is you're available for hire oh 100 yeah absolutely okay so

2:54 · that goes for all forms out there in the EO universe that could be watching we we have somebody uh with an expert that could come in and give some life into that form and we all have experienced uh once when she got that Retreat done and you get back and you're in you know month eight nine ten and you're just not coming out of that form experience with any level of energy right or you kind of Come Away with did I really get out uh enough for my investment of time

3:25 · um maybe you need a little uh steroid shot bring Colton in come and whip everybody up into shape and next thing you know you're back on track right I didn't know I was getting such a plug today do this this is such a plug man this is fantastic click the link below Okay click here go ahead and smash that subscribe button you know go ahead and book today so uh but let's talk about this this uh this episode's all about coaching and my first uh form experience

3:54 · uh I did not have the we called it at the time presentations but we're now calling them deep Dives and if you watch episode one you'll see that some of the terms have changed and that's why he's here to really re-educate us on terminology to use in form but the best value I got was being coached and I went into my particular Deep dive

4:18 · with my coach with one intent and then I realized it went a lot deeper through the coaching process talk about number one why would you even bother having a coach in the first place for that deep dive uh also to to open I'd love to give

4:36 · some facts to back exactly what you said so when we do a forum Health survey before we go on like I go facilitate a retreat one of the questions is how much value are you getting from presentations what's your takeaway value from that are you are do you feel like you're going deep Etc it's what a couple of the questions forms that have been together 10 years commonly they'll have this where I'm just not getting the value of it and then subsequently I don't feel like we're going deep enough so there is there is actual data from 20 000 surveys

5:05 · at this point through Forum Sherpa where they they acknowledge that those things kind of they ebb and flow with uh how much value people are getting out of presentation so I just want to give some facts to back up what you're saying there yeah absolutely and and by having a coach during that you you really serving the entire form it's not just the person that's doing the Deep dive to get value it's for all of us to receive that and learn because I learned just as much through someone's drama than my own right and uh so what does the process

5:36 · look like to be coached how do you walk through a form to do that the right way what is the right process my presentation was last month I was coached uh if you mean

5:54 · I thought it was perfect um so uh when I was uh being coached for my deep dive thank you Eric there you go um I uh so a personal experience shared the the benefits to jump to the benefit of a coach we met ahead of time as we were figuring out what my deep dive was going to be and uh we were like some uh

6:14 · chain restaurant down in Brentwood we met there and we met there for an hour and in the last two minutes of that he goes well I think we just changed topics and I just heard you say what I think the presentation is going to be which was very different from where we started I was like it's 100 he goes it only took us 58 minutes called but we got there at the end and I loved it so at least to jump to the outcome that's the benefit a

6:36 · third party no Force for the trees that can reflect on what's going on and both the coach and you have this opportunity to really explore what's there and dig down in those layers so you don't have to find your way there with the group you've already had the opportunity to get down and know what you're exploring so you can bring that to Forum the thing that that stands out to me about uh people who didn't get good coaching is when they have delivered the

7:06 · the meat of their their deep dive and you you get to the point where you're asking questions and the first question is now what do you want out of this um that's something that often does not get expressed clearly when somebody's doing a deep dive what what kind of feedback are you what are you looking for here what are you trying what are you trying to solve you've told us a lot of things but we don't hear the

7:33 · one thing that's the problem that caused you to want to do this deep dive there's a worksheet that I've got that I've bastardized from some EO form I pulled a while back which has a series of questions uh where you know it's the presenter's guide and you have a coach's guide and a presenter's guide and one of the things that the presenter fills out it goes through and you know it says what's the headline what do you want to get out of this presentation what are the feelings Associated Etc and then describe the situation and I love this list wherever I stole it from but it's a grid of like 12 things and it describes

8:04 · the situation are you between a rock and a hard place are you at a fork in the road are you at a Mountaintop like it has all these like physical description are you drowning are you underwater it has all these things that kind of helps it frame up the conversation for everybody else which commonly helps with what template or what style of Deep dive

8:24 · you're gonna do which is so helpful to yeah get the most out of it and then give context to the rest of the Forum this will be in the show notes right of course it's called the coaching worksheet right uh yeah and we can put this this other document you were talking about in the same PDF so everybody has the same thing because we there's a formal uh worksheet that you can use with your if you're the coach

8:46 · uh and you're coaching someone you want to walk through that uh worksheet together it really gives you the ability to kind of put your thoughts on paper and can get prepared because you know the purpose of coaching um on the Deep dive isn't to solve their problem is it no no it's really so great point and common misconception you hear the term coach right and that's what people assume and at the top of that it says your job is not to solve the problem your job is to define the problem and a

9:19 · key phrase that they use now is not even relevance but resonance and that's really the goal of open coaching to find the problem and sometimes it's okay to do a presentation where they say I don't know what outcome I'm expecting then at least defining it I I want to use this space even though I don't know what the outcome is I want to use this space to hear the perspective of others I want to learn from others and I I want to explore this space together which is totally acceptable so yes to clarify

9:47 · coach not your job to solve it it is your job to help that person explore what are the depths of whatever it is that I wanna I wanna Deep dive on right and and that coaching process um where I've seen uh it seems to when I've coached before what kind of uh shines the light for me is a lot of these problems are super complicated and um the the Deep the presenter doing the

10:18 · Deep dive he's got a very complicated business and maybe it's a very complicated uh decision tree they're walking through and then you know the whole form has got to sit there and try to you know uncover their complicated business and then complicated options he has to choose from and so how does a good coach distill that down so it's so easier for

10:41 · them to navigate how to describe that complicated thing um there's a so whether I'm doing open coaching which we can talk about or even like for pre-planned presentations I always love to do this where I say hey man what's the headline and then the next thing I say is what kind of experience shares do you want to hear from the group I love it when those things change at the end but that's the thing I I keep trying to come back to because that normally informs where you're headed and it's like interesting check-in points along the way to help uh

11:13 · frame to frame up the whole pre the whole Deep dive good gravy I should know better at this point but you know you got to get that ready before you go to boot camp or you're going to be I think yeah yeah I'm already on the fence to be honest with you not not for myself but for them they I barely made the cut I think the beauty of us doing this these little tiny mistakes because even in 15

11:35 · years you're going to do it and we were all yeah we're all going to say this mistake but I think over time we'll get better at it so this is good I'm glad you get to make the mistake too yeah you can always count on me to make a few mistakes but but the the coaching process of being clear so because you because ultimately what you don't want to do in your form is confuse them and um or with confusion you go in the 12:01 · wrong direction they're sitting here trying to figure out some complicated business strategy and at the end of the day you know you're talking about an emotion that you're trying to uncover and trying to since you guys have a lot more experience and you know and a lot more gray hair to be frank um personally attacked you should was I

12:22 · unclear on that in some capacity I just feel glad I don't have glasses on I can't wait for this to go baggage a question for you both have you guys been a part of the deep Dives formerly presentations where the person gets done and you notice that people are noticeably frustrated by okay so so what

12:41 · are we talking about here yeah like and you notice the emotions come up and they just because frame it up for me and people can't do it either because the person didn't think through it enough or wasn't coached well right have you had that oh experience yeah 100 yeah in some cases don't even understand the the details of what the problem is not necessarily what they're asking for but you know you've left this confusing mess here I I think it's important for somebody to go into it and maybe over explain even uh of all the players that

13:15 · are involved in in why you're presenting or something made complicated that isn't complicated at the same time right but you you do need to just clear it up and by the headline by understanding that uh could help clear the way for not only um

13:32 · to be able to receive it but to get to the meat because you could spend a lot of time in the discovery process when it's not it's not important I mean what's more important is hearing the experiences from other people in the form that can share and help shine that but if you're taking up all your your time on the explanation of something that's often what I have seen we over complicate it for a deep dive and you know we're not trying to solve everything we there's like yeah we gotta pick a problem like we can't have 20.

14:05 · right we got to pick one how do you get how can you be a good coach when you get you're going in this deep dive conversation in the coaching practice and it's like the the the entrepreneurs all over the place these problems because this problem is like how do we pick one so one um in an Ideal World everyone's

14:27 · using their parking lot right uh which is the number of issues that are high on importance not necessarily on urgent what's great is when it's your time for your Deep dive your planned Deep dive you're able to go to the parking lot and you're going to pull that item which means it should be fairly well defined at this point at least the headline wise Etc a couple other things that I think are important people uh it is human nature to like tell a story and give too many details I believe and especially in

14:56 · this situation where commonly on a deep dive it's it's a lot of times far more EQ than IQ the details of it do not matter it doesn't matter when people are hang on was it March or was it doesn't matter it doesn't matter what month it was when we're talking about that doesn't matter let's get to the feelings sure maybe the outcome or also like what

15:16 · is it we're actually exploring here rather than the exact date or this detail the only time where that shifts is if it's one of those like IQ topics and it's a situation where it's like I have gotta revamp my company in terms of you know I've got a partner that's departing and I'm trying to figure out what do I do with the Opera sure those are the elements where yeah details details might matter but I'd say eighty percent of the presentations you don't need to get lost in the details and you know it it is helpful if you do have a

15:44 · deck or something to hand out so if you're trying to describe something verbally when a pitcher could do that easily so you could just put it up uh that has helped me before uh especially because a lot of a lot of the entrepreneurs they have multiple businesses they have multiple layers and

16:02 · then there's a Nuance inside their own organization that creates all kinds of drama that maybe an org chart you know printed for everyone to look at describes a better version of of what they're truly trying to find it really does and I think that's one of the benefits of the coach presentation which you know you're making me think I should revamp uh what is on my like uh

16:25 · bastardized uh coaches uh worksheet there should be something like what materials would be helpful for this presentation because you're 100 right we had something in the past several years about this where somebody had questions about cash flow and uh it was like cash

16:40 · flow and then org chart et cetera and they were able to provide those kind of documents and even give it to us ahead of time so everybody came in reviewed so we were burning precious time with someone walking through that and it was like a homework assignment where everybody came in with questions and things highlighted to understand what was going on which is so helpful and you get deeper quicker so I heard you used this earlier maybe it was the first episode of open coaching versus live coaching what's the difference open coaching works really well for unplanned presentations so when you're in forum and Forum typically

17:13 · starts with five percent Reflections formerly called monthly updates and you're gonna pull a topic out of that that is high on or high on important and hopefully high on urgent you know uh what I call like the back half of half of the meeting five percent reflection then you do like an hour planned presentation if you've got two hours left in your agenda you can do one two or three uh impromptues which would have open coaching which is you pulled a

17:41 · topic from your five percents and then you're gonna talk about um you know processing uh a cancer diagnosis uh my number two just left last week um I've got to you know or something celebratory and you're trying to figure out what to do with opportunity right um open coaching is the first 10 minutes of that where you're basically it's similar to what you would do in a planned presentation it's just expedited

18:07 · and truncated and has a special set of rules to it uh for Success right there so and what is that what do you say a special set of rules what do you mean by that one it matters a lot on the skill set of the open coach some people like to rotate that I think that they're individuals that are better suited for open coaching High EQ Natural Curiosity uh you also have to have um an element of Confrontation it's one of the things that I make and I say that uh you need

18:34 · to be comfortable interrupting people there's a way that I I've said it I've found the greatest success in being able to interrupt because people are likely to follow details and stuff like that and you got to be able to interrupt especially if it's an emotional story and say Hey I want to jump up I want to get back on track for a second oh I'm worried we're rabbit holding because otherwise people take eight ten minutes talking about the details and never get into the meet right so that that's a good description of using that and and during that coaching process um something that uh tell us some good tips

19:08 · to prevent a coach trying to solve their problem or trying what what language do we use to better get them to get the the format to explain more about what their pain points are like what language questions walk us through Best Practices there because sometimes we're attempting we're problem solvers right have you tried this have you tried that already out also breaking Gestalt now

19:37 · known as Forum mindset so the difference we'll get to that later go ahead the difference between open-ended questions and closed-ended questions so that right there is the basic of if I was going to say what's the one thing that makes for great open coaching open coaching open-ended questions if I can answer your question with a yes or a no that's a bad question so or a single word answer right

20:01 · um there is I mean caveat right at the beginning of open coaching where you're just trying to get facts which you should not spend a lot of time on right um that is a time okay so what is your head count all right what's your Revenue goal for this year there's a couple of those that can be helpful which is okay uh head count 15 Revenue gold you know 4.5 million that's fine however you've

20:22 · got to get into the open-ended questions which aren't leading questions have you tried this yet that's nope you're not even oh gosh you shouldn't even do that in experience shares because you're that's a leading question open-ended questions how do you feel about what's your relationship what would it look like if all of those you cannot answer with a yes or no and commonly it's it's a part of what you're thinking but you're not giving the person the opportunity to explore the space if you're giving them just a simple yes or no what kind of evidence do you have as a

20:52 · coach that you're on the right track when you're coaching what's something that's a Telltale sign that hey ah I'm pretty good at this coaching thing uh I'd say body language um pauses I I would argue um you if commonly you in in the open

21:12 · coaching wind up at a different spot from where you started which is why I bookend open coaching over seven minutes and I say hey give me the one sentence headline I don't say hey tell me about the situation give me the one sentence headline they would be at the top of the newspaper and then what are the types of experiences you'd like to hear from the group number two and then three I say give me three emotions that that are related to this topic I close not with

21:37 · the feelings but I close with um even without going to the headline I just close with what are the types of experiences that you'd like to hear from this group and when that changes over time I feel like you've done some really good work it doesn't have to happen but it but it's definitely indicative of doing some really good work to to dive deeper yeah and those pauses could look like you know than thinking you know often we uh we have this thing in the back of our head we're like it's an issue it's a problem I gotta I gotta tackle this and I put it on the the parking lot and now

22:08 · I'm got to do the coaching I don't even think about it outside of that Forum right not until you get into the the actual coaching session and then someone's asking your questions you're like oh I haven't thought of that you know we don't often really in our minds just go too deep like a coach would unlock

22:27 · that cabinet inside of us to pull out those those things that we've had hidden you know those tough questions that make us think about um yeah I'm probably struggling with this because somebody bullied me when I was 14 years old and and now I am resisting this thing because of that thing from way you know a long time ago right what are the questions that you guys have either used or heard in Forum that have been really great thought-provoking questions

22:58 · it always is like you know how does that make you feel saying that in front of someone else uh because sometimes we uh you know we're different people with different people you know and different experiences are different for lots of people but uh for me it's it's

23:18 · um um getting them to describe their issue in front of someone they would not normally want to describe it to because that involves that person Ellie bird has a really a really great uh question Bank uh through the Forum Sherpa side and for all I know it's floating out there somewhere that you can download but it's got about 25 questions to it and I love this question bank but there's a number of um there's a number of specific

23:42 · questions I love like one year from now what would you like to be able to say about this situation if especially if there's some tension or something else uh or just you ask you know hey what would the closest loved one to you say about this what would they say back to you what would your business partner say if they were in the room and you had to leave there's a couple questions like that that are pretty consistent that get people to go oh okay like a lot of times especially not like a really tense situation empathy Falls for folks and forcing them

24:12 · to Think Through what that other person is going to say sometimes can be a little more revealing wow that's really good you know I think back uh after my first coaching experience I I recognized how important that process would look like in my own business with people that I was coaching you know employees that were trying to navigate an issue and and

24:37 · I would find myself trying to solve their problem right and learning the coaching practice that they teach us with coaching another peer right you realize that getting someone to solve their own problems is is powerful like and when they solve their own problem

25:02 · um they are the solution right by telling someone ah you know Colton man been there done that dude if uh this is what I would do trust me this is what you do it does not resonate and does not have the power punching power that self-discovery of the solution on their own well said is this your segue into Gaston oh no sorry go go for me the what that

25:29 · question uh what outcome would you like to see is always shocking to me it's like oh wow you know uh I don't know I've just been talking about the problem I haven't really thought about what the ideal solution might possibly be yeah it really has woken me up a number of times but and I also feel when we get when we get into these um deep questions

25:51 · that are open-ended um there are times where man it feels like I'm being grilled I guess it's probably a thing for me maybe it's uh childhood trauma like you've described it's like man I feel like I'm being attacked here but uh it's you know at

26:06 · the end of the day it's it's uh those questions that nobody else is ever going to ask me about this that's I think that's part of the beauty of forum you're gonna you're gonna get and with the help of these questions that we're going to be provided in the show notes it is you can be great too it is called the Deep dive yeah yeah I don't think you're doing good coaching work unless you go deep you gotta yeah and you gotta ask the questions that uh you know you

26:33 · you're gonna feel uncomfortable asking some of these because it it could you know go go a little hairy and uh and that's why I think it's really important too is like you know getting to that trust level with the person you're coaching first you know it could be very difficult to do a proper coaching with

26:54 · the brand new formate that you don't know and you're with this person how do you go deep with someone that you don't really know you haven't had an experience with a retreat together you haven't had much time and you're still all both putting that front of everything's great right and so figuring out a way to get deep and

27:17 · vulnerable is really important and maybe that involves telling a story about some of your own pain or your own struggle that you can share to open up that vulnerability box that exists and get them to start pulling out and and getting the Deep out of that can I uh can

I share with you a way to exploit that new relationship exploit that sounds really conniving and and oh it is

27:43 · exploit um so I think um I think there's a real benefit to not having a deep relationship with someone that you are uh that you are coaching for a planned presentation or doing an open coaching because I'm slipping in some of the new terms as we've discussed shoshin s-h-o-s-h-i-n is uh is one of the things

28:07 · that EO is saying is a is one of the fundamental tenets of forum which is um I think it's a Japanese term uh for beginner's mindset and so and the phrase there is that um you know to the to the

28:22 · beginner there are many options or to the student there are many options to the expert there are few and it's the simple concept of like if you think you know it all or you have been through it you're already like oh we can dismiss that it's really going to be one of these three things because I've got enough experience whereas the The Beginner's mindset and this idea that you are always going to start out with things with the world of possibility and you're going to spend more time exploring than you are dismissing which

28:45 · is a difficult concept for some but that's when I talk about exploiting the new relationship I mean taking advantage of that newness where you don't even have to pretend you literally are going to be asking these questions so is really the limiting factor you talked about there is transparency and vulnerability but the benefit is especially if if there's already been you know kind of the Cadence of relationship in there and someone's already been transparent then really acting kind of like a reporter that's on the live or a good podcast host such as

29:14 · your show yourself that knows how to ask questions it can be you know actually very disarming if people are picking up on empathy and whatnot through that and you're using the fact that hey I'm kind of ignorant to this I I really want to know more can be very inviting if you get that tone just right um well let's let's go on the flip side here what is a bad coaching experience feel like I was going to say what Eric shared but I don't want to say that he's had bad coaching experiences uh I've been apart

29:43 · and I've seen it where sometimes folks get defensive because it gets a lot of well why haven't you done that so uh man I got hit with a tax bill that was double you know I owe 120k in taxes this year you know and and the open coach or even the questions just as people are trying to find the experience shares starts to put that person on the defensive and then sometimes they may or may not say guys all right I feel like an idiot now that I haven't because all of the line of questioning is well did they not tell you about quarterly payments we'll have you guys well like

30:14 · what tax bracket are you in well how many I mean what did you pay in taxes last year there's lots of things like that where the tone and intonation can really make someone kind of back up and I've watched it happen where I've watched someone start to put up walls as it goes along because they're like everybody knows more than me and I look like an idiot they're surprised that I don't know the answer to this question yeah and I can see how no one to feel

30:37 · stupid but you know sometimes we get so caught up in our day-to-day that we do stupid things that we can't explain it makes no sense that you know clearly we've gotten ourselves in this situation but you know a good coach would maybe go deep would someone go even deeper it's like go into that well I mean obviously the first thing out of my mind is which is a terrible thing who's your accountant you know he's like who's doing this work behind the scenes and let's find out why you're so bad the

31:07 · one of the things I like to do whenever I and and here's the reason when I'm modeling open coaching for uh groups that I'm facilitating a retreat for there's part of it that's best practices and whatnot so I'll commonly open coach through one two three presentations in like 20 30 minutes it's very quick one of the things I do in that space is I'll have my notepad out or whatever and I kind of pretend like I'm asking straight up questions or whatever when really I'm not I go hey let me just let me get a couple facts about the situation and then I go into it and it really kind of frees up the Judgment right what did you pay in taxes last year if you know what

31:39 · did you and there's just a it's why EQ comes into play because there's kind of reading the other person and if you notice that body language where they're starting to back up and cross their arms and you know what I mean all of the body language elements of like closing down versus sitting up leaning up feeling

31:55 · like you're a guide rather other than an interrogator is that key to making sure and I wasn't trying to speak disparagingly it sounds like you've had a real depth and sometimes people can be really honest but it's still kind of backs you up because they're really getting you to maybe look at things from a different perspective without being aggressive am I putting words in your mouth or is that okay that's accurate okay and so do you pick the coach

32:21 · I say that I let folks do that especially if they you know if someone um I commonly uh I'll have folks especially if it's Financial tax Etc uh if one of those topics um investing yada yada in my group I'll say hey Bo you're better for this one because he's a wealth management guy so he knows so much more and he can put it together and and understand and interpret faster and so in our Forum in most forums I say hey you can pick a coach otherwise and this is very much like not EO standard this

32:50 · is called Mulligan standard I have a default open coach which is someone that has a demonstrated ability to have high EQ ask really great questions um and and able to navigate and doesn't mind cutting people off and has a repeated history of helping people get to the five percent quickly they're the default unless at the end of the presentation you say hey do you want Colton to do it or or would you do you think you got a uh is there somebody else you'd rather have open coach this time that's an exit advice there

33:19 · um because everyone has a different quality they can bring to the table doing those they're doing those processes now let's think about um so usually you're gonna do a coaching exercise um prior to the to your form meeting uh is there any particular time frame that makes sense

33:39 · um do you want to do it closer to the form meaning let's say a week prior or or does it even matter am I making that too complicated but it seems like um it seems like for everyone's benefit that you would want to do it closer to the form meeting so it's more fresh or

33:55 · what are your thoughts because I could see I've experienced myself where you're doing the coaching and and you're doing your pers you're going to present the Deep dive to the form and you're like I can hardly remember what the issue was because it was three weeks ago right I feel like you know 72 hours in advance is a good basic time frame because if things shift over the coaching you have time to uh to rethink whatever it was

34:20 · like the the experience share I had where I talked for 58 minutes and at the end in the last two minutes we figured out what it was which got me to reframe my preparation for how I was going to share and then likewise if you find there's resources that you need to get in there hang on I gotta get with my tax guy to get last year's returns this out of the other ah let me go find my operating agreement so the day before the morning of bad idea 72 hours in

34:41 · advance good and I think you're making a fair point depending on the nature of the topic a week before might work if it's this large like existential question that you've got or something you've wrestled with your entire life most likely that would work but yeah it sucks to show up and be like all right we talked it was 10 days ago I can't even remember you know what I mean so now let's let's talk specifically uh

35:04 · your form meeting okay and best practices um and I realized it's like this in my form but you know I'm learning here so maybe there's people are doing it different ways what a great beginner's mindset we're seeing demonstrated right here I'm so beginner I am the rookie here um in my experience uh it has been that um the coach will open up the Deep dive and present the you know deep dive to

35:30 · the form and then kind of introduce um the the formate to then talk about answer questions uh why why is it like that why why am I not starting to Deep dive and just talking about me why a coach doing that I think the coach has this benefit of understanding a lot of the Salient points and packaging things up well for us for the trees analogy and

35:56 · they you know and like what the the coach setting the stage I think it's two three minutes it's what I can normally recommend and they're doing what's the headline and I I make it a very clear formula what's the headline what are the types of experiences they'd like to hear from the group three important facts

36:12 · three feelings that the person shared and then I also normally have an eye notice something in that space where it's like uh my reflection was I saw a lot of tension I saw a physical hand ringing as I was coaching Eric uh through this thing I noticed that he got most excited when he was talking about his kids and as he's doing his future life plan I noticed that that's the area that really got him excited something like that that the that the presenter themselves would not be able to share on

36:42 · their own oh that's great that is great um any any best practices when walking through describing the the Deep dive I mean is that something that someone should worry about practicing beforehand or you know what kind of tips can you

37:02 · give a coach so they do that right because they're not just wing it because this really has to be well thought oh don't wing it oh yeah the group you are going to do the group a disservice if you just plan on winging it and the three of us know because we talked about it before the podcast oh he can wing it which is great in some contexts when you have eight people who have very valuable time don't just wing it in the offhand chance that you are not as efficient as you'd like to be and it will be better if you prepare EO has one likewise in

37:28 · the show notes I'm happy to put in there my like bastardized uh coaches worksheet presenters worksheet it what's great you fill it out ahead of time just read the damn worksheet and it does just those things and if you feel took the time to fill it out you're gonna read out the blanks of what you had and in two three minutes you were going to do a fantastic job packaging what the topic is for the day does it make sense or to to catch up

37:54 · with him on a call all the day of just to have a little summer hey I know you're driving in this is this is what I'm prepared to present it like this is how are you cool with me saying it like this is is that helpful I've done that in the past particularly when I've reflected on something and there was a change um yeah because I could see there could be a change from from you know a week ago something could be totally different I I don't have any best practice around that but I could have you guys I've seen benefit to that yep yep yep so

38:27 · coaching anything that I've left off or I didn't ask about coaching that would make a lot of sense to bring to the table um so uh so because the purpose of this podcast and this episode too is something that you could listen to in the core on the way to go do your coaching with someone to kind of prep you and prepare you for what that experience should look like because it should feel like at the end of a coaching session like like why

38:56 · would you like how would I as a coach how should I feel when I know it was successful um so uh well uh you got two questions in there and I'm gonna so one thing I failed to mention which you were saying hey anything else we should keep in mind uh open coaching or a planned presentation plan deep dive coaching is

39:18 · that's key is make sure you really focus on what are the types of experiences you'd like to hear from the group right that's really the thing that that helps everybody best and then I try and Define two typically so I try and find one thing that is the most specific to what's going on and then I try to do one layer up in case you don't have that that is most related to the feelings and the type of situation that we talked about so hey do you feel like you're drowning do you feel like you're at a fork in the road do you feel like you're a rock and a hard place things like that and so that way if folks you know so you

39:51 · say man I'm I'm having a real issue with my spouse because she just will not face the facts about her relationship with her father right call it that well there's people in the group and somebody says I would like experience shares about a time you have encountered a spouse about their relationship with their parent well maybe there's people that aren't in a significant relationship right there right so I know really do that one what's the most specific and relevant and then I back up and give one more that's a little higher hey what's a time when you really cared

40:19 · about someone and you'd been putting off a conversation and you knew you wanted uh you wanted to confront them in their own best interests about a behavior that you're hoping they'll change right so I just gave two options that make it accessible rather than somebody going I don't I don't have a spouse and I guess I'm out on this one right right that's excellent Colton thank you thanks Eric that is episode two of the decision

40:46 · thanks for listening to the decision podcast by Nashville EO we'll see you again next time and be sure to click subscribe to get future episodes

Music

Applause

Music

thank you